

(Above, left) Mumbai sheriff Dr Indu Shahani interacts with a student; (above, right) actress Karisma Kapoor with Vinati Javeri

The ASIAN AGE GUIDE to fortune

1 When did Giuseppe Mazzini proclaim Rome a republic?

- 1847
- 1849
- 1850

2 Who won the 2000 Euro Cup?

- France
- Italy
- Portugal

3 What did the Sullivan Ordinance of 1908 outlaw in New York City?

- Voting by women
- Smoking by women
- Women driving cars

Tick the answer and check THE ASIAN AGE tomorrow to discover how good you are. The answers to yesterday's questions are:

1. Ireland
2. 1991
3. Ulan Bator

Students outshine celebs

OUR CORRESPONDENT | MUMBAI

Successful women from various walks of life paid a visit to their exhibition but nobody stole the show as much as the organisers and the creative hands behind it.

Om Creations Trust, a centre for developmentally handicapped women, hosted an exhibition on Tuesday to showcase various creations of their students. From colourful beaded trinkets to painted silk cloths, crochet bags to terracota jewellery, the students displayed their work with pride and excitement.

Mumbai sheriff and educationist Dr Indu Shahani led the festivities, followed by actresses Karisma Kapoor, Mandira Bedi and Dimple Kapadia.

Mandira, who is also the brand ambassador of Om Creations Trust, spent a considerable amount of time with the children. She could not stop raving about how talented and artistic these young women have turned out to be.

Also seen at the exhibition was industrialist Yash Birla's wife Avanti.

One must make special mention of the very delicious food on offer that included pastas and pastries.

(Above) Actress Mandira Bedi is also the brand ambassador of Om Creations Trust

(Left) Avanti Birla with Ms Radhika and Sr E. Gaitonde of the S.P.J. Sadhana School at the exhibition on Tuesday. Photographs by Harsh Javeri